Campaign Overview

Elders Batemans Bay operates as a rural property and livestock agency on the Far South Coast, where word of mouth and local reputation carry real weight. Through this partnership with ARN, the business took sponsorship of This Week in Music across 2EC Bega and Power FM. The programme ran from January 2026 through September 2026, speaking to listeners across the Bega Valley, Eurobodalla and surrounding rural districts.

In total, 677 spots were delivered across 173 broadcast days, amounting to 5 hours, 38 minutes and 30 seconds of airtime for Elders Batemans Bay. Of those, 508 were paid spots and a further 169 were delivered as bonus spots at no charge. Delivery held at a steady rhythm month after month, so the brand was never absent from air for long across the nine-month period.

The Value of Radio Advertising

Trust in regional markets. Local radio carries high trust in regional communities, and that credibility transfers to the brands heard within its programmes. For an agency selling rural property and livestock, being present on 2EC Bega and Power FM across 173 broadcast days builds familiarity well before a vendor picks up the phone.

Reaching people where they are. Audio reaches listeners in the car, in the shed, in the yards and at home, which suits an audience that spends much of the day away from a screen. The 677 spots delivered found farmers, graziers and property owners during the working day rather than after it.

Frequency builds recall. Property and livestock decisions are made infrequently, so the brand needs to be known long before the decision arrives. Averaging close to 80 spots a month for eight consecutive months kept Elders Batemans Bay in regular rotation rather than relying on short, forgettable bursts.

Sponsorship earns association. Owning This Week in Music means the brand is woven into content listeners choose, rather than sitting among unrelated advertising. That ongoing association across two stations, split evenly at 339 and 338 spots, gave the agency consistent ownership of a recognisable programme.

Reach at efficient cost. Radio reaches around 17 million Australians each week and remains one of the most cost-efficient ways to hold a market. Here, the effective cost landed at $22.51 per spot against a $53.00 ratecard, some 58% below published rates.

Summary & Recommendations

Across the January to September 2026 period, Elders Batemans Bay received 677 spots over 173 broadcast days for an investment of $15,240.00 excluding GST. That comprised 508 paid spots at $30.00 each, plus 169 bonus spots delivered at no charge and worth $8,957.00 at ratecard. Total ratecard value of the campaign reached $35,881.00, an ROI multiple of 2.35x on the amount invested, with 33.3% more airtime than was paid for.

- 1. Align weight to selling season. Monthly delivery held close to 80 spots throughout, which built steady presence. Consider lifting weight ahead of major livestock sales and the spring property listing period, then easing back in quieter trading months.
- 2. Add drive-time weight. Drive accounted for 117 of the 677 spots, the lightest daypart after evening. Shifting a portion of the schedule into drive would catch listeners travelling home from the yards, saleyards and job sites.
- 3. Commit to a full-year term. The nine-month run demonstrated the value of continuity in a market where property decisions are made rarely. A rolling 12-month sponsorship would protect the programme position and remove any seasonal gaps in presence.
- 4. Refresh creative by listing. With 173 broadcast days on air, message fatigue is worth managing. Rotating scripts around specific listings, upcoming sales and appraisal offers would give listeners a fresh reason to respond each cycle.
